Teacher's Corner

WELCOME TO LITCHFIELD PARK PRESCHOOL

The start of preschool is a milestone that is anticipated with great excitement and joy. We have several tips to successfully start this new adventure and to reduce separation anxiety!

Discuss Preschool with Your Child

Consistency is key when it comes to making preschool a part of your child's new routine. The night before preschool, assure your child they will have fun and you'll be there to pick them up after school. Simply going together on a regular basis will provide your little one with a strong sense of anticipation. Keep your goodbyes brief, give your child a hug and let them know you will see them after school. When you pick your child up at the end of the day, reinforce the idea that you came back, just like you said you would.

Get the Teacher Involved

Litchfield Park Preschool's teachers are warm, caring, and experienced individuals who anticipate students' needs. Please make sure to provide Ms. Seye with any necessary information that will help the teaching staff get to know your child better.

Create a Goodbye Routine

We encourage parents to develop a goodbye routine. This could be anything you and your child decide, such as a hug or special saying. Once you've said your goodbyes, it's best to skedaddle so that your child doesn't become preoccupied by your presence.

Separation Anxiety

Children settle into the preschool environment quite quickly. Anxiety for some children is normal. Don't worry! Eventually your child will outgrow the separation anxiety.
